MESSAGE FROM HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH

BUCKINGHAM PALACE

The success of the Ten Tors expeditions shows clearly that the spirit of adventure is still very much alive.

Living as we do in an overcrowded, highly regulated island it needs considerable ingenuity to find an outlet for this spirit.

Colonel Gregory has hit upon an idea which provides just the right mixture of challenge to the ingenuity, toughness and adventure of healthy young people.

I hope all the patrols taking part in the 1962 Ten Tors will have an interesting time and when it is over I hope they will thoroughly enjoy the sense of achievement.

INTRODUCTION

by Lt. Col. L. H. M. Gregory, M.B.E.

Of the many purposes the ancient and historic wilderness of Dartmoor serves, including its less palatable associations, none could be more valuable or popular than its national adoption as a playground for adventure and a sanctuary for all who seek a little natural leisure and fresh air away from city and town, office and classroom.

Dartmoor possesses an agelessness that is mystifying, and a magical quality that arrests the attention of the bold in spirit and young in heart. To say "I spent the night camping on Dartmoor," or that "I walked across Dartmoor," is to claim a distinction at once significant and honourable in the field of adventure.

According to its seasonal mood, Dartmoor can be breath-takingly beautiful or severely barren, awe-inspiring and frightening or calm and reassuring, and over its three hundred square miles of moss, peat, heather and swamp, there is to be found every shape and size of hill or tor, sharply defined by the winding streams of the Dart, the Tavy, the Plym and many others. Yes Tor is the highest of the Tors and over 2,000 feet above sea level, but there are a great many more nearly as high and equally formidable. Under a blanket of mist or in the dark, in the rain or in the snow, the challenge magnifies itself to alarming proportions.

For many years young people have found their way to Dartmoor to hike and camp and to enjoy all the good things that nature has to provide, and to revel in the discovery of a prehistoric flint arrow head, or to come across a stone row or hut circle, and to appreciate that it has been there for three thousand years.

These regular skirmishes by boys and girls from all over the country, and all the advantages enjoyed by Junior Leaders of the services stationed in the precincts of Dartmoor and its influence, led inevitably to a meeting point that crystallized into an expedition known as "Ten Tors."

The first attempt at this gathering of youth was sponsored by The Junior Leaders Regiment of Royal Signals stationed at Denbury in South Devon, and was supported by entries from the three services. On September 15th, 1960, patrols from the Navy, Army and Air Force, totalling a modest number of 21, including one civilian patrol, set off from Haytor, and about one-third of this number completed the course successfully.

From this pilot run in 1960 many lessons in control and organization were learned. The number in each patrol was reduced from ten to six and the upper and lower age limits widened. A shorter course was included for the younger entrants and girls, and participation in the management of Ten Tors was extended to the three services, including the Women's Services.

The fruits of honest endeavour were realised in 1961 when 156 patrols camped at Denbury before the start of the expedition, and of the total field a good sixty per cent. completed the course successfully. Now the aim is to develop the venture to the largest manageable number, consistent with maintaining a high standard of organisation, and to encourage patrols from the continent to participate.

Three separate courses have been selected for 1962 to cater for each age group from 14-16, 16-18 and 18-20. Only one tor (Haytor) and the finish is to be common to all three courses, which means that a total of 27 tors have been plotted ranging over the whole expanse of Dartmoor.

Ten Tors is not a challenge or competition of man against man, but an adventure, demanding careful planning, imagination, skilful navigation, endurance and unselfish team work. The success of each individual contributes decisively to the success of the patrol, and the failure of any one member spells failure for the whole.

INSTRUCTIONS.

1. THE AIM

To encourage teams of young men and teams of young ladies to take part in an expedition across Dartmoor.

2. OUTLINE PLAN

Entry—open to patrols of six between the ages of 14 and 20 years.

Entrance Fee—£4 for each patrol payable by 1st MARCH, 1962.

The organisers regret that it has proved necessary to increase the fee to £4, owing to the increased distance from the finish to DENBURY.

Distance—Three courses :

35 miles for girls, and boys aged 14—16 years.

50 miles for boys aged 16—18 years.

60 miles for young men aged 18—20 years.

Time—36 hours including 10 hours compulsory rest.

Jamboree—11 a.m. to Midnight on 11th June, 1962.

3. THE MECHANICS

- a. The Mechanics will be simple, involving no more expense than the total contribution received from all competitors. The entrance fee from each patrol of six—including the patrol leader—will be £4. This will cover transport to and from the expedition and a meal afterwards. The only accommodation offered will be a piece of ground to set up base camp. Water and latrines will also be available.

- a. Patrols will walk a course across Dartmoor calling at Ten Tors.
- b. All competitors will travel by bus from Denbury Camp to Haytor and this will be the starting point of the expedition.
- c. At Haytor, patrol leaders will receive a sealed envelope containing a map of Dartmoor.
- d. Each team must then check the route to be taken, and set off.
- e. At every one of the Ten Tors there will be a check-point, wireless post, and first aid facilities.
- f. At each check-point patrol captains will report their patrols present, and hand in their route cards for stamping.
- g. To qualify in the expedition it will be necessary to complete the course in 36 hours, and each member of a qualifying team will receive a medal.

TEN TORS TREK

ABOVE: Don't let the "L" fool you. The rest of the outfit, particularly the boots, was just the ticket for a two-day hike across the fast great wilderness of England. RIGHT: Newton Abbot, Bovey Tracey and Ipplepen Army Cadet Force units each sent a patrol on the expedition. This was the Ipplepen team en route.

THEY called it the largest single gathering of youth ever to embark on a voluntary expedition in this country. Nearly 1,000 teenage boys and girls set off from Hayton in the gray dawn of Saturday morning. Their weekend aim: to trek round a 50-mile course, according to sealed instructions given them at the start.

The Junior Leaders' Regiment (Denbury Camp) sponsored the 16-hour Ten Tors Expedition for over 150 teams. The majority were entered by Service units—some from as far as Carlisle—but South Devon chipped in with a number of school, cadet force and youth club patrols. There was a slightly less strenuous course for the 66 girls taking part. (See story, page 4-1.)

LEFT: The Ashburton County Secondary School had six boys and six girls entered. The boys had been practising for the event for the past six weeks. ABOVE: The two boys' teams from the Teignmouth Venturers were among the youngest.

TEN TORS PRAYER

“ O God, Who has made the Earth of wondrous beauty, and implanted in Man the Spirit for Adventure, we thank Thee, for the beauty of the earth, for the joy of life, for the courage and vigour of youth, for friendship and friends, and the opportunity to enjoy all these gifts. Go, we pray Thee, with all who today set forth on this Great Adventure among the Tors of this ancient moorland. And grant that, overcoming every frailty, we may meet each challenge and difficulty with unselfish courage, and in the companionship of honest endeavour, find that spirit of true brotherhood which alone can serve our God, our Queen, and our generation. . . .”

AMEN.

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION

The Ten Tors Expedition is conducted in friendly association with the Hundred Miles International Four Day Marches which are held annually at NIJMEGEN, HOLLAND, in which venture the Junior Leaders Regiment, Royal Signals has participated successfully over the past three years. This association has the approval of the Burgomaster and people of NIJMEGEN and the organisers of the NIJMEGEN Marches. It has been entered into in the sincere hope that youth exchanges will take place every year between NIJMEGEN and South Devon and that thereby the spirit and progress of these two ventures may be forever linked in friendship and co-operation.
